

Dear Friends,

We are inviting emerging markets colleagues on the buy and sell sides to join us on Monday, April 12, from 6-8 pm at the K Lounge (30 West 52nd Street b/w 5th and 6th Aves.) for a networking session and a short talk at 7.00 pm by World Bank disaster management expert Francis Ghesquiere on “Preventing the next Haiti: the Role of Emerging Market Investors”. We will also be collecting donations to support the Lambi Fund of Haiti and will be hearing from a Lambi Fund representative.

Our speaker Francis Ghesquiere has been working closely with top officials in Haiti to coordinate international relief efforts since the January 12 earthquake hit. He will provide a perspective on the tragedy and suggest ways emerging markets investors can encourage governments in which we invest to be better prepared for natural disasters. His bio is further below.

We will be accepting donations ($10 or $20 suggested) at the door for the Lambi Fund (www.lambifund.org), a non-profit that works with community-based peasant and women’s organizations in rural Haiti to promote social and economic empowerment. Lambi Fund Board Member Gyliane Morgan, who was formerly with JP Morgan’s Investment Banking/Public Finance group, will say a few words about the Lambi Fund.

Please RSVP by this Thursday COB to Deborah.Johnson@invesco.com with your name, company, and role.

Look forward to seeing you!
