
Ricardo Mora

Securities

New York

Ricardo is global head of all FICC Emerging Markets Distribution. He is also head of Americas Foreign Exchange Sales. Ricardo is a member of the Latin America Operating Committee and serves as the sponsor of the Americas Securities Black and Hispanic/Latino Council. Ricardo joined Goldman Sachs in 2008 as a managing director and was named partner in 2010.

Prior to joining the firm, Ricardo was a managing director at Deutsche Bank, where he held senior roles in Emerging Markets Sales, Trading and Syndicate from 1995 to 2008, and at Chemical Bank from 1991 to 1995.

Ricardo serves on the Board of Visitors for the University of California, Berkeley and is a vice chairman of Emerging Markets Trade Association.

Ricardo earned a BA in Economics and Sociology from the University of California, Berkeley and an MA in International Affairs, specializing in International Banking and Finance, from Columbia University, School of International Affairs.

