

Tina Vandersteel
GMO

Ms. Vandersteel is the head of GMO's Emerging Country Debt team and serves as portfolio manager for GMO's external and local currency debt portfolios. Prior to joining GMO in 2004, she worked at J.P. Morgan in fixed income research developing quantitative arbitrage strategies for emerging debt and high yield bonds. She began her career at Morgan Guaranty Trust and attended the Morgan Finance Program #18. Later she worked on the development of the EMBI, the most established bond index for emerging sovereign debt, as well as the related analytics for assessing the valuations of complex Brady and other emerging debt instruments.

Ms. Vandersteel earned her B.A. in Economics from Washington & Lee University. She is a CFA charter holder and serves on the CFA Fixed Income curriculum review board.
